LAKE, CHARLIE
Veteran Pacific Coast Engineer.

Born in Norway in 1868. Came ashore from a square rigger at Portland in the early 80s and for several years served with the Oregon Railway and Nav. fleet. both on the river and coastwise. Among the river boats in which he served was the "Occident" "Wide West" "Harvest Queen" and "T.J.Potter"; Coastwise, he stood watches on the steamers "Oregon" "Columbia" and "Geo W. Elder" getting his license on the latter in 1892.

He came to the Sd. by orders from the Willametti Iron Wks. of Portland to adjust the complicated poppet valve engines of the "Greyhound" He stayed on the Sound after that and served on the "City of Everett" and "Telegraph" owned by the U.B.Scott interests of Portland. He later served as Chief Eng. on the "Flyer" and on the tug "Tillicum" and several Sound vessels before sailing deep water again on the "Norwood" and "Griffson"

For the past 20 years he made his home in Duvall and Monroe. Survived by a widow, a son and daughter.

LA PEROUSE

1786

(Commdr. Jean Francois de Galaup de la Perouse)

In 1785 he commanded a scientific exploring expedition organized by Louis XVI of France, on a lavish scale.

Two vessels fitted out---the "La Boussole", commanded by La Perouse, and "L'Astrolabe", commanded by Capt. De Langle. Left Brest Aug. 1, 1785, via Cape Horn and Hawaiian Isles, they arrived June 24 in vicinity of Yakutat. from here they cruised southward as far as Monterey, Calif arr. there Sept. 15. Remained here until Sept. 24, then took final leave of the American coast.

La Perouse was an unfortunate navigator. At Lituya bay, which he entered and surveyed, 26 of his ship's company were drowned in the tide bore at its entrance. Both ships with all hands were lost in 1788 or 1789, and for many years their fate was a mystery. It has been solved, however, and some of the wreckage of the ships has been recovered and recently placed on exhibiton in the Naval Museum in Paris.

LESLIE EXPEDITION

1890-1891

(Frank Leslie)

In the spring of 1890 Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper sent an expedition to Alaska. Conducted by E.H. Wells, E.J. Glave and Alfred B Schanz, with Wells in command John Dalton and Franklin B Price of S.F., were employed as helpers. From S.F. to Pyramid Hbr. on Survey str. "Patterson". Chilkat Indians convoyed them up the Chilkat River, over the divide and down the Takhini River.

At Kusawa lake Glave and Dalton crossed to headwaters of Alsek and went down it in a canoe. The rest went down the Yukon to Fortymile creek. Schanz became ill and was replaced by a Mr. De Haas. Party went up 40-mile creek to Tanana and on up Tok River. Low on food so turned back. They went to Nulato, crossed portage to St. Michael.

Meanwhile Schanz recovered and with James A French went down the Yukon to St Michael. He and a Wm. C. Greenfield and some Eskimos, made a bidarka trip from St. Michael to Ikogmut, portaged to the Kuskokwim, went down it and coasted to Nushagak on Bristol Bay where he met Wells and party who had also coasted down previously.

Later Wells crossed the Alaska peninsula to Katmai

Schanz and a party went up the Nushagak, Mulchatna and Kakhtul rivers, crossed to the head of Chulitna river and descended to Clark Lake, which he named. From here they went down its outlet, across Illiamna lake, and down the Kvichak to Bristol bay. He then followed Wells across the peninsula to ~~Bristol~~ Katmai.
