RAY

(Capt. Patrick Henry Ray)

Early in the eighties the leading nations of the world undertook simultaneous exploration of the North Polar regions. The plan was for each participating nation to establish as far north as practicable, a station for meteorologic and magnetic observations and to maintain it for three years. In this work the U.S. established two stations, one under Gen Adolphus Washington Greely, U.S.A., at Lady Franklin bay, the other under Capt. Patrick Henry Ray, U.S.A. at Pt. Barrow. With Ray, as observers, assistants, etc. were, among others, John Murdoch, Middleton Smith, Edw. Perry Herendeen, and Sergie Smolianinof, a Russ, who is call in the records A.C.Dark. (He died in Wash. on Feb. 11, 1901

The party sailed from S.F. July 18, 1881, on the sch. "Golden Fleece" and reached Barrow Sept. 8. Here a permanent station was established and maintained until Aug. 27 1883, On the 29th the party sailed away on the sch. "Leo" and reached S.F. on Oct. 7, and was disbanded on the 15th,
