TEBENKOF

(Capt. Mikhail Dmitrievich--)

Was director of the Russian American Co. and governor of Russ.-Am. during 1845-1850 In 1831 he was in Norton Sd. and in that year discovered the bay that now bears his name. In 1833 he surveyed and mapped it. In 1835 he was in Russia and sailed that year in command of the Russ.*Am.Co. ship "Elena" for Sitka where he arr. via Cape Horn on Apr. 16, 1836. He seems to have remained in the colonies until the close of his term as director then returned to Russia To him, more than to any other Russ. are we indebted for geographic knowledge of the Alaskan coast.

Being a surveyor, and interested in surveying, he gave much attention to improving charts of the coast in the interest of the company. In 1848-1849 there was compiled, drawn up and engraved at Sitka, his Atlas of the N.W.Coast of America. This Atlas of 39 maps shows the entire coast line from Bering strait to Lower Calif, with adjacent Ids. and parts of the Siberian coast. It embodies the results of the various surveys made by Russ. naval off., offs. of the Russ.-Am. Co., etc. These maps were engraved at Sitka by Terentief, a creole. With it was issued by Tebenkof, a little book of Notes and Explanations.
