W.H. Olive was a steamboat captain of the "Flora," "Dora," and "Nora" on the Yukon in 1898-1899.

Scope and Contents

Mr. Olive writes that this is a story told to him by William Ogilvie. It is about a young man named Pam who took the Dyea trail to the Klondike, his partner Sir Beaujoy Longchamps died enroute. He finds a purse on the trail and returns it to its owner. Later, in Dawson, Pam meets a dance hall girl who sends her earnings to her brother for college. It turns out that she is the person, disguised as a boy, whom he had helped on the trail.
