BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

C.L. Andrews was born and lived on a farm at Ashtabula, Ohio until the age of two when his parents went westward to Oregon where they settled in Linn County near Brownsville. He attended United Brethren College and graduated in Business in 1882. He spent the next 17 years between Seattle and parts of Oregon working at various jobs, as a county clerk, auditor and farmer. Then in 1897 Andrews came to Alaska with the Luigi expedition as a bearer or camp hand to climb Mount St. Elias on the Alaska-Canada border. Until 1940 he lived, worked and photographed in Alaska. He spent one year in Sitka, 5 years in Skagway during the gold rush, then 1904-1909 in Eagle on the Yukon as a customs agent, and 1922-1929 in the Arctic working for the School and Reindeer Service.

Andrews wrote several books and numerous articles on Alaska, and edited and published a tabloid THE ESKIMO from 1936 until 1947. Andrews moved back to the "mainland" in 1940 and lived with his sister in Eugene, Oregon until 1948 when he died at the age of 85.

Mr. Andrews' photographic collection includes his own photographs in Alaska and also photographs he collected of fellow photographers.

SCOPE AND CONTENTS NOTE

The C.L. Andrews collection includes photographs from many places in Alaska, ca. 1892-1940 and reflect the time he spent in Sitka, Skagway, Eagle on the Yukon River, and in the arctic while working for the School and Reindeer Service. A variety of subjects, i.e., bidarkas, fisheries, glaciers, Tlingit Indian arts, totems, as well as portraits of individuals and groups, are included in the collection. Twenty photographs of illustrations and other miscellany from this collection are located in PCA 62. Documents form a separate collection, Ms 175.

INVENTORY OF PHOTOGRAPHS
