BIOGRAPHICAL/ HISTORICAL NOTE

There is little information on the photographer, Mrs. Pyatt, except that she worked for Sydney Laurence, Alaska's most famous photographer, doing photo lab work. Original negatives are in private ownership in Seattle.

PCA 76 Addition - Box 2:

The black and white photographs in this collection are primarily of the construction of the city of Anchorage in approximately 1915-1916. Many of the photos bear the name of the photographer - Pyatt. Many businesses of that era are recognizable by their signage, including Brown and Hawkins; Polley Bros. General Store; Mrs. Tillman's Ladies Furnishings; Baxter's Magazines; Terminal Transportation Co. Two Girls Cafe; Snookum Johnson's Restaurant and Lodgings and many others. An early Anchorage municipal building is featured. A July 4th, 1915, parade is documented, along with public speaking in front of veterans groups including veterans of the Spanish-American War and surviving members of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Most of the 5 x 7 black and white images (contact prints) in this collection had been stored in 3 Kodak paper boxes and have little or no descriptive text to identify the subjects of the pictures. There are also a small number of larger (8 x 10) photographs and many of these are duplicates. Many of the photographs evidence curling at the top and bottom edges.
