ACQUISITION: Many of the photographs in this collection were transferred from PCA 01, the Core File, because they are early prints -- artifacts. The 01 designation is now used primarily for the Core File, and Early Prints are now PCA 297. PCA 297 is an ongoing collection. Photographs will be added as they are accessioned into the Historical Collections. PCA 297-339 (Accession #2009-013); PCA 279-340-350 (Accession #1991-023); PCA297-356 (Accession #2012-009)

ACCESS: The photos may be viewed. However, they may not be photocopied.

COPYRIGHT: Request for permission to publish or reproduce material from the collection should be discussed with the Librarian.

PROCESSING: The photographs are numbered and placed in acid-free inserts. The old 01 numbering system was left on the photographs as a reference, but the images are filed in PCA 297 order. A cross-reference database was prepared and is now available in this inventory.

Scope and Content

These photographs are a selection of early images of Alaska by various photographers. They are from all over Alaska, but the concentration is in Alaska's Southeast. Originally housed in the general photograph files (CORE FILE), they were removed because they are now considered rare and fragile. All photographs in PCA 01, which were fragile, faded or unsuitable for constant handling in the core file were transferred to PCA 297 and renumbered in a consecutive numbering system. Photocopies were made and placed in the core file. Oversize prints were left in 01 as their oversize storage protects them in a similar way (reduced image photocopies are found in the CORE FILE).

The views are largely from the pre-gold rush period and are generally original prints. However, some images date as late as the 1920s. Most represent some of the earliest Alaska photographs, which make them of interest for subject matter and as important examples of early photographers and photography. (See also PCA 341, and other collections, for work organized under various early photographer names.) Few, if any, of these photographs have original negatives here in this library.

Photographers and companies (not all appear to be professional photographers) represented by one or more images in this collection include Landerkin, Reuben Albertstone, Harrison Bros (Juneau), Isaac W. Taber (San Francisco), J.M. Blankenberg, Lance Burdon, C. Stites, Winter & Pond, Eugene S. Willard, E. Chamberlin (Sitka), (George?) Mercer, W.B. Byram (Pasadena), Heimberger & Son (Indiana), (Sydney?) Hamilton, B. W. Kilburn, Asahel Curtis (Seattle), and Peterson & Bro. (Seattle) and Walter Strand.

The following table lists current number in PCA 297, former number in CORE FILE (01), location of photocopy in core file, and a description of the image.

(Some images have information on the verso of the photograph that may not be repeated here.)
