S. Hall Young Collection: Papers & Photographs, 1881-1927

MS 203
PCA 443

Manuscripts: 6 boxes (32 linear inches)
Photographs: 1 box (5 linear inches)

Processed By: Kay Shelton
2003

ACQUISITION: Gift of S. Hall Young descendants Patricia H. Dayton (Mrs. Richard E.) with assistance from her sister Barbara Batson (Mrs. W. T.). The Photograph collection received with the papers is designated PCA 443. (Acc. No. 2003-20)

ACCESS: The collection is unrestricted. However, since the original letters are very fragile, photocopies must be used. An inventory is available.

COPYRIGHT: Request for permission to publish or reproduce material from the collection should be discussed with the Librarian.

PROCESSING: The papers were not in original order when received. A partial inventory and transcripts of selected letters came with the donation. In addition, the family had performed conservation on a few of the letters and images. The processor divided the collection into photographs and manuscripts. The letters were separated into sent and received and then arranged chronologically. Envelopes, most received without stamps and/or with addresses cut out, are filed with the letters, and the transcriptions were also filed after the original letter. A complete set of letters, envelopes, and transcripts were photocopied for reference purposes. Two additional sets were sent to the donor and to the Presbyterian Historical Society in Philadelphia, respectively. The photographs were arranged, described when possible, and housed in Mylar sleeves. Some are fragile. Those images not identified are housed together. A guide and inventory were then prepared.

BIOGRAPHY

Samuel Hall Young, "The Mushing Parson"
(1847-1927)

By
Robert N. DeArmond

Samuel Hall Young was born at Butler, Pennsylvania, on September 12, 1847, the son of the Rev. Loyal and Margaret (Johnston) Young. He was educated at the University of Wooster, Princeton Theological Seminary, and Western Theological Seminary, where he graduated in 1878. He taught school in Pennsylvania, Michigan and West Virginia and was ordained a Presbyterian minister in June 1878.

He landed at Wrangell on July 10, 1878, to begin missionary work. At Sitka on December 15, 1878, Young was married to Miss Fannie E. Kellogg. They settled in Wrangell, and there on August 3, 1879 he organized the first Presbyterian church in Alaska and the first Protestant church since the transfer [of Territory from Russia in 1867]. That same summer he met John Muir and in the fall, with Muir and four Tlinget paddlers, made the first of many trips by dugout canoe in Southeast Alaska. On that autumn voyage they visited both Glacier Bay and the Chilkat country. Young's book, "Alaska Days with John Muir," published in 1915, recounts some of their adventures. In the summer of 1881 Young attended Alaska's first non-partisan political convention as a delegate from Wrangell and served as secretary of the convention. During the 10 years he headquartered in Wrangell, Young established missions at Haines, Hoonah, Howkan, Kasaan, and Tongass.

In 1888 the family left Wrangell and he served successively as pastor at Long Beach, California; Cabery, Illinois; Cedar Falls, Iowa; and Wooster, Ohio.

In 1897, Young was strongly considered by President McKinley for appointment as governor of Alaska. The nod went to John G. Brady, and, with the Klondike Rush as its height, Young was sent to Dawson. He climbed over the Chilkoot Pass with hundreds of others and sent down the Yukon on a scow, arriving at Dawson on October 7. He established the first library at Dawson and on Easter Sunday, 1898, organized the Presbyterian church there.

During the next three years, he organized missions at Eagle, Rampart, Nome, and Teller. In 1901, Young was appointed superintendent of all Alaska Presbyterian missions. He lived at Skagway in 1902-1903, at Council in 1903-1904, at Fairbanks from 1904-06 and again 1907-08, at Teller in 1907-07, at Cordova in 1908-10, and Iditarod in 1911-12. During those years he became known as "the mushing parson" because of his many long journeys on foot.

From 1913 until 1921, Young held the title Special Representative of the Presbyterian National Board of Missions, with headquarters in New York, and during that time he made many trips back to Alaska. His wife, Fannie Kellogg Young died in 1915. He was named general missionary for Alaska in 1922 and superintendent of Alaska missions in 1924, with headquarters in Seattle. In the summer of 1927, as he approached his 80th birthday, he escorted three different groups of Presbyterians to Alaska; then went east to attend a reunion. He was riding in a friend's car when it had a flat tire. When Young stepped out, he was struck by an inter-urban trolley. He died in the Clarksburg, West Virginia, Hospital September 2, 1927, and was buried beside Mrs. Young at Syracuse, New York.

His books include The Klondike Clan, Adventures in Alaska, and an autobiography, Hall Young of Alaska, published shortly after his death. It dwells particularly upon his first decade in Alaska and his work with the Natives.

Mount Young in the Chilkat Range, Young Island in Glacier Bay, and Young Rock, which he discovered near Wrangell, were all named for S. Hall Young.

PAPERS: SCOPE AND CONTENTS

The S. Hall Young manuscript collection consists of correspondence, writings, and general materials encompassing the years 1881-1927. The correspondence is primarily letters sent to his family, especially his wife, Fannie Kellogg Young, from 1881 until her death in 1915. Other correspondents, including James Sheakley, John Dixon, C. L. Thompson, J. W. Kirk, John Muir (a photocopy), and Judge James Wickersham, are represented with one or two letters each. A few letters relate to Alaska, but are not by or to S. Hall Young. His writings include a draft of his autobiography entitled "Mushing Parson" and articles and poetry, both published and unpublished. General materials include maps, a typescript of a Utkiavik [Barrow] Ritual and Hymnal in English and Inupiaq, and publications relating to Alaska, Alaska native culture and languages, and Young family genealogy. Several items concern William Duncan and the church in Metlakatla and Edward Marsden. Other materials include clippings and memorials relating to Young's death, two book jackets, and a hand-lettered cardboard advertisement of a lecture.

PAPERS: INVENTORY

BOX 1: CORRESPONDENCE

- Arrangement and Description: S. Hall Young's (SHY) letters are separated into "Letters sent" and "Letters received." They are listed chronologically. Envelopes were retained with letters and are presented as received from donor, without stamps and with corners cut out. Three letters filed under "Other letters" were part of this series, but could not be identified as “sent” or “received” by SHY. Transcriptions by Teresa D. Moore, part of the donation from the family, are filed here after the letter they transcribe.

- Processing notes: All letters were flattened and photocopied on acid-free archival paper by ASL staff in May-July 2003. Some items have conservation work, such as taping, done by family member.

Letters Sent, 1881 - 1926:

N.B. When SHY uses term of endearment such as “Mama” in letters to his wife, her full name is substituted under “Addressee”.

PCA 443
PHOTOGRAPHS: SCOPE AND CONTENT

The 548 photographs in this collection were collected or perhaps taken by S. Hall Young during his time in Alaska. Since he traveled throughout Alaska, the scenes are varied and include many formats, including photo postcards. Several sets of photographs appear to have been sent to him by missionaries in the field, although only a few –Whipkey in Council and Greist in Barrow—are identified. Although mostly not noted, the images probably date between 1890 and 1920. The photographs are arranged geographically with the exception of images of people. Subjects vary, but include missionary portraits, town scenes, hunting, children, Alaska Natives, cemeteries, and dog teams.

Images of people and groups are separated into two folders. (Folders 17 and 18 are designated “People” and “Family” respectively.) Prominent personages in images include S. Hall Young and his wife, those involved with the Presbytery, including Edward Marsden (Metlakatla), David Waggoner (Juneau), Bishop Rowe, and Dr. Condit.

Identified Alaska locations include Anchorage, Barrow, Cordova, Council, Craig, Eagle, Fairbanks, Glacier Bay, Haines, Hoonah, Howkan, Hydaburg, Iditarod, Juneau, Kake, Kasaan, Ketchikan, Klawock, Klinkwan, Knik, Matanuska, Metlakatla, Nenana, Nome, Ruby, Saxman, Seward, Sitka, Skagway, Tokeen, Valdez, Wrangell, Dawson (Yukon Territory). Commercial photographers include Clemens, Lomen, Simmer, Winter & Pond, F. H. Nowell, P.S. Hunt, Cameron, E. A. Hegg, Kennedy, Case & Draper, William L. Paul, Jr., and Ordway.

The last two folders contain images that are not identified, including some that are obviously not taken in Alaska.

Physical Description: 548 images, 5 linear inches: various sizes. The condition of the images varies; many are only in fair condition. This number includes eight glass-plate negatives, images removed from MS 203, and five items stored in MS 203, Box 5 (OVERSIZE).
