	Dinner with Gov. Hoggatt – the Shoups – Marshall & Mrs. & the two daughters & Miss Trimmer also Genl. Distin present.
	-6- (Wrangell)
	Heard motion docket all day.
	The Ketchikan {Wrangell} Sentinel" had an editorial last week severely arraign =ing Gov. Hoggatt for calling out the military at Treadwell – it was so rankly traitorous - another Editor is U.S. Commissioner, Justice of the Peace &c. The Governor wrote me a letter enclosing the paper and requesting his removal – I telegraph =ed the whole to Judge Gunnison & requested his action – Today he telegraphed to me requesting me to give the Com. notice & to act – I wont hesitate to give him notice & then remove him! -

july13d	Tired, disgusted and disheartened
, .	in an effort to bring organization to Alaska, to separate the judiciary from the executive department and to grant to Alaskans a modicum of self-government, Federal Judge James Wickersham last night appealed to the bar of the State of Washington for assistance. Set down on the program to succeed Judge R. A. Ballinger in response to the toast, "The Law, the Land and the Home," Judge Wickersham plunged boldly into a recital of Alaskan wrongs, and for the first time since he has been on the bench in Alaska struck back at the Congress which has ignored his reappointment and demanded that Alaska be considered.
	Judge Wickersham is a picturesque
	A pioneer lawyer, territorial judge, reform municipal official, legislator and Alaskan pathfinder he talked to the State Bar Association without embellishment and without equivocation. For three or and without equivocation. For three or four years he has been fighting from session to session of Congress for a confirmation of his reappointment and he is now preparing to go into the interior of Alaska to remain there during the winter. What Congress does or does not do will not affect him and the speech he delivered last night was a defiant challenge to politicians. It was distinctly the sensation of another wise prosaic banquet, relieved only by the enthusiasm with which favored speakers were received. In comparison with the sledge hammer ultimatum of Judge Wickersham, the speech of Vice-President Fairbanks partook of secondary importance.

Diary 12, 1907	[newspaper clipping continued:]
july13e	"If my career at the bar were to end ,,	with the achievements and results of this week's work," said retiring President E. C. Hughes, of the State Bar Association, "I would be quite content." Then in turn he lauded Judge Wickerof Idaho and Hiram E. Hadley of Washington, Justices Root and Crow of the state supreme bench, who attended the association's meeting; Federal Judge Edward Whitson, Secretary James R. Garfield of the interior department and Vice-President C. W.

	Fairbanks. He introduced Judge Thomas Burke, who acted as toastmaster and who was received by the State Bar with every mark of enthusiasm.
	Judge Wickersham was the first speaker before the banqueters. "I want to request the assistance of the lawyers of the State of Washington to remedy a system of government insuf-fient and unsatisfactory to the people of Alaska," boldly asked Judge Wickersham. "I know that it is a bad govern-ican citizens. What we want to do is to reach the senators and the representatives of the State of Washington.

	Will you help us? Will you help us get a government for, by and of the people of Alaska.
	"When I went to the North there was no court house; there were no records,
