

TUNE IN TO THE PAST

WITH HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS

Irene Muller, UAS Intern

When UAS Intern Irene Muller began her research on the history of the Alaska Folk Festival and its impact on the Juneau community, she needed access to historical musical recordings and the special equipment needed to digitize, save and share sound files. Fortunately, everything Irene needed for her research was available at the Alaska State Library Historical Collections. Staff provided Irene with a collection of historical recordings of the Alaska Folk Festival and showed her how to splice reel-to-reel tapes, digitize the recordings and save them in an archival format using the sound recording equipment available at the Historical Library. Now Irene is ready to present her research Alaska Folk Festival: a living history at the Alaska Anthropological Association conference in Anchorage.
