Baranoff, Alexander

Born 1746 in Karapel in S.E. Russia

First established trading posts on Cook Inlet and at Prince of Wales...

1796 found a colony on Bering straits but did not prosper owing to lack of ships and men to run them. This failure led him to move to Resurrection Bay and build ships.

1780 he first came to Alaska—established a post at Three Saints Bay on Kodiak Island and several outposts on the island—at Kodiak and in Cook Inlet.

It was not until 1800 that he located at Old Sitka and established New Archangle (Sitka).

1804 he equipped two sloops the "Ekaterina" and "Alexander" to retake Sitka. Had his 120 Russians, 300 bidarkas and 800 Aleuts and on the way was overtaken by the "Neva".

From this date in 1804 began the new permanent establishment of New Archangle now Sitka...

He left Sitka in 1818, late fall, for Russia and died Apr. 1819, on board the ship, of tropical fever contracted at Batavia.

No relation to Capt. Ed. J. Barrington of Popt & Talbot or the Syd Barringtons. Book 44; pp 13
Capt. Hill Barrington joined PSMHS. Well known on P.Sd., Stikine River boats. His Dad, Capt. Edw. Barrington, Sr. arn. on P.Sd. in 1852 and shortly thereafter formed a partnership with Mr. C.C. Philips to carry mail between Olympia and Bellingham in an Indian dug-out canoe. This was a risky and uncomfortable business, not only because of distance, etc. but because of Indians being unfriendly, etc. However venture prospered and the two men acquired the sch. "Eclipse" and began a general frt. business on the Sd. and as far as Victoria, B.C.

At the same time Capt. B. operated a general store in Oak Hbr. Sidelite: All mail put in lg. box and people all thumbed thru taking mail addres to them.

In 1858 the partners commissioned John Izett & Capt. Geo. Morse, also of Oak Hbr. to build the sch. "Growler" at Monroe's Landing. (Now swimming beach near Penn Cove Park.) "Growler" proved one of most successful and showed continued profits. Later wrecked in Alaska waters.

ANOTHER HERRING DEAL

W.R. Bayers and F.K. Body, two eastern men long connected with the sardine packing industries of the Maine Coast, and who recently returned from an extensive trip through S.E. Alaska waters, are in Seattle endeavoring to interest local capital in a project on Behm Canal near Ketchikan, and are meeting with encouraging success. In these waters they have found an excellent run of small herring which they declare far superior to, in quality and in number, anything found on the Atlantic seaboard, where is located the center of the sardine canning industry, of the U.S.

As proposed by these experts, a complete canning equipment will be built on large scows, which will be towed from place to place on the canal, following the runs of herring, avoiding the necessity of a large equipment of fishing boats......

BERING and CHIRIKOF
(Capt. Commander Ivan Ivanovich 'Vitus')
(Capt. Alexie Ilich)

Bering in the "St Paul" with Ståler, and Chirikof in the "St. Peter" with Croyere, left Avacha bay on June, 4, 1741 on official exploration voyage ordered by Russ. Govt. Separated on June, 20, by a storm: Bering landed somewhere near mouth of Copper river on July, 20. Headed back next day, touched at Shumigans, sighted some of Aleutians and wrecked on island which bears his name Dec. 8, 1941. Died in wreck and was buried there.

Chirikof made land July, 15 at Bucareli bay, S.E.Ala. Sent two boats ashore, probably near Sitka, and possibly third of crew killed by Indians—-he put back to sea and arrived back at Avacha on Oct. 9, 1941.

11/30/1939/2 A 93 yr. old seaman at Astoria says the bones of Vitus Bering were recovered by a Danish whaling ship on which his father served, and moved to a "decent christian burial" at Horsens, Denmark and are no longer on Bering Id. in the Kommandorski Group.
