Introduction

Governor John Troy was born in Dungeness, Washington, October 31, 1868. He worked in the newspaper field and as a county official in Clallam County, Washington before coming to Alaska. From 1897-1907 Troy was publisher and editor of the Skagway Daily Alaskan, then publisher and editor of the Alaska-Yukon Magazine, 1911-1912. He became editor of the Daily Alaska Empire in Juneau in 1913 and its owner in 1914. From 1919 to 1922 he served as Collector of Customs for the District of Alaska. In April 1933, Troy was appointed Alaska's Twelfth governor serving through 1939. Troy died May 2, 1942 and is buried in Juneau.

In October 1981 Helen Monsen, daughter of Governor Troy, officially presented the personal papers of her father to the Alaska Historical Library. These files, comprising four document boxes (1½ ft.) of records, are particularly significant as they reflect on the Governor's appointment to his office the personal and political matters with which he dealt during this tenure.

These personal papers are primarily correspondence relative to political activity, appointments for office, the Democratic Party, special requests of individuals for favors and letters from friends. There are some special files of correspondence including a folder concerning Anthony J. Dimond, Alaska's Delegate to Congress; letters of congratulations on Troy's reappointment as governor; resignation as governor; Democratic Party political file with several photos of Governor Troy; responses to a circular letter inviting persons to visit Alaska. There is also a file of commemorative stamps and cachets kept by Governor Troy. The official records of Governor Troy are in the Alaska State Archives and were microfilmed by the National Archives. (microcopy 939) Microfilms of these records are in the library - see the guide for Ar 27.

Governor Troy loaned some of his records to the Bancroft Library, University of California at Berkeley for microfilming. These papers covering the period 1913-1918 document Troy's work when as a publisher of the Alaska Daily Empire (Juneau) he investigated the birth record and personal history of Governor J.F.A. Strong of Alaska. He discovered Strong to be a Canadian citizen and not qualified to be Governor of Alaska. See Microfilm Ms 34 and inventory in the library for these additional Troy Papers.
