BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE (Paul Sincic)

Paul Sincic worked as a cotton picker, telephone lineman, logger, night desk clerk at the Gastineau hotel in Juneau, with the Alaska Railroad. He attended darkroom school in New York and, after marrying Agnes, the couple took their four adopted children outside of Alaska while he earned a teaching degree. They returned to Juneau where he taught history at the high school and a year each in a logging camp and bush school. He seldom was without his camera and took thousands of photographs traveling through the U.S and Alaska. He even took a camera to the front lines during World War II. Paul Sincic died at age 84, leaving behind volumes of photographs and negatives, as well as numerous interviews about his life and work. [From: “Legacy of vision,” by Betsy Longenbaugh, Juneau Empire, Nov. 22, 1998.]

SCOPE AND CONTENTS NOTE

The following is a list of 478 glass plates made by H.C. Barley and other photographers between 1898 and 1915? which belonged to Paul Sincic of Douglas, Alaska. The glass plates were loaned to the library in September 1978 and copy negatives and prints were made from 186. Additional contact prints were produced from 105 plates (views 208 to 312.)

The collection includes views of Skagway, the people and the waterfront community, the Yukon Territory, W.P. & Y.R., Treadwell mines on Douglas Island, Alaska wild flowers and plants, and Copper River & Northwestern Railroad in the Valdez area. Of particular importance are the views of Dyea, Alaska, since photographs of this community are scarce. The collection includes many portraits of unidentified people who were probably in Skagway.

Other photographers represented in the collection include C.L. Andrews, Case & Draper, Louis H. Pedersen, T.P. Callarman, and E.A. Hegg. The collection includes copies of a manuscript honoring Heney’s construction of the White Pass & Yukon Railroad. [See original at PCA 340.] The starred (*) numbers indicate no print in the collection.
